THE WEST IN RUSSIA AND CHINA

DONALD W. TREADGOLD

In this two-volume work the development of western thought in Russia and China is examined throughout the whole of modern times up to the Communist revolutions of 1917 and 1949 respectively.

Dr. Treadgold's interpretation offers many new features. The important role of religious ideas is brought to the fore. He considers sympathetically the values of Russian and Chinese culture and the efforts made to incorporate these into various syncretic solutions — solutions which have been severely criticized by certain Russians and Chinese and also by western historians.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION FOR THE ADVANCEMENT OF SLAVIC STUDIES

Founded in 1948 under New York Membership Corporation Law for the purpose of publishing the American Slavic and East European Review, the "Triple A Double S" was expanded in 1960 into a membership organization. It is governed by a Board of Directors elected by the membership of the Association and affiliated national professional associations. The members elect the president and vice president. The Board appoints other officers. To serve its members and to answer inquiries concerning activities in the field, the Association maintains a AAASS Central Office at The Ohio State University, Columbus, Ohio.

The principal publication of the Association, the Slavic Review: American Quarterly of Soviet and East European Studies (formerly the American Slavic and East European Review), carries scholarly articles and book reviews dealing with all parts of the Soviet and East European areas and representing the various academic disciplines of the social sciences and humanities. It encourages discussion of significant problems that cut across disciplinary and regional lines.

Each week The Current Digest of the Soviet Press presents a selection of the contents of the Soviet press, carefully translated into English (or objectively summarized and in such cases designated as abstracts). The translations are presented as documentary materials without elaboration or comment. They state the opinions and view of the original authors, not of the publisher. These materials are published in order that they may be of direct assistance to persons engaged in the research and interpretation of public affairs.

The Newsletter, published four times a year, disseminates information on professional conferences, institutional developments, grants and fellowships offered and awarded, and other activities in the Slavic and East European field.

Upon the recommendation of its Publication Committee, the Association publishes, sponsors and distributes publications of special value to the profession. Most recent publications include: The USSR Today: A Soviet View, selections from the CDSP, July 1970-July 1972; and two handbooks prepared at the Russian Institute of Columbia University, Soviet Union and Eastern Europe: Financial Aid, Exchanges, Language and Travel Programs, and Russian and Soviet Studies: A Handbook.

To supplement the sessions relating to the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe that are normally a part of the annual conventions of the various associations in the disciplines, the AAASS encourages interdisciplinary meetings on a local and on a regional basis. The Association welcomes the formation of chapters or branches by groups on their own initiative.
